

MIZUNO MX700 £199

Grain-aligned titanium face boosts forgiveness and power

Mizuno are well known to TG readers for making great irons. But while their grain-flow forged offerings have become industry standard-setters, the woods department has not seen the same kind of broad approval.

Happily, this is where the MX700 steps up. Replacing the MX560, the latest offering features a plasma-welded face which helps increase ball speeds off all parts of the face. This is thanks to what they are calling Ti9, based on the face that metal, like wood, has a grain which can be orientated either to boost strength or limit it. The grain in the titanium face of the MX700 runs vertically from sole to crown, a design that expands the driver's sweetspot.

Clubhead weighting is designed to help the golfer achieve penetrating drives. The wide geometry of the head means a low CG and big sweetspot – leading to impressive launches and low spinning tee shots.

Looks-wise, our team found themselves split – George thought it was an absolute 'Bobby Dazzler', but Roy wasn't so keen on the graphics on the top of the club.

But where all of our crew were in agreement was in the performance of the MX700 – it was stunning. Long, booming drives were very much the order of the day, with dispersion figures also favourable.

This is the best Mizuno driver we've seen for a while, in our opinion... and the fact that you can get hold of it for less than 200 beer vouchers only serves to add to what is a fantastic package.

Bigger and sweeter

The MX700's sweetspot is expanded by aligning the titanium grain vertically on the clubface.

Graphic design

Head curves weren't to everyone's taste; performance was.

Out to launch

The sleek headshape aids an easy but penetrating shot shape.

Not just great irons

Our testers agreed this could be the driver that puts Mizuno on the map for drivers.

LOOKS	4.1
FEEL	4.8
NOISE	4.8
GRIP	4.5
DISTANCE	4.0
DISPERSION	4.0
TG RATING	★★★★★

Lofts: 9.5°, 10.5°, 12°
Contact 0118 9362 147,
golf.mizunoeurope.com

New Mizuno MX-700 hybrids reviewed @ www.todaysgolfer.co.uk/gear